

Entrepreneur article didn't mention VAs

I enjoyed your career article on entrepreneurs in the May 13 edition, but I was surprised you did not mention the growing army of equally entrepreneurial individuals who are out there ready to help.

I am speaking of virtual assistants, a growing profession in today's high-tech, Internet intensive world.

These highly skilled administrators, Web designers and bookkeepers can partner with the emerging entrepreneurs to help them grow their business while keeping costs to a minimum. The entrepreneurs only pay for the time they need and do not have to provide office space or equipment.

VAs work out of their home offices, using the power of the Internet and email to keep in touch. For more information or to request the services of a virtual assistant, visit www.CVAsuccess.com.

VALERIE JOHNSON,
TORONTO

,